Two & One

Jesus Jones

Everyone's giving a piece of their mind The deaf, the dumb, the stupid and blind Crushing the words to the people who doubt With the weight of the hard of the fast Coming out

Days that seem clear to me are the days That you're near to me

Everything is fine And you know the sun will always shine Two and two always equals four And life is simple when you're sure The world's on someone else's shoulders Leave it there 'til it gets colder Two and two always equals four Did you never hope for something more?

Black and white and wrong and right Real and real and how do you feel? The louder you shout the better you're heard The meek shall inherit the earth--that's ubsurd! The bigger they come, the harder they fall 'til you're big enough you don't fall at all

Help, save, change me You can rearrange me But never let me say I know For certain

Everything is fine And you know the sun will always shine Two and two always equals four And life is simple when you're sure The world's on someone else's shoulders Leave it there 'til it gets colder Two and two always equals four Did you never hope for something more?
