

My Little Lady

Jimmie Rodgers

I had a gal, oh, what a gal, her name was Haydee Brown. I'd take Her out, to ride about, when the moon was shining down. We'd sit Alone, when we got home, out in the old porch swing. Then the dear Little miss, would give me a kiss, while sweetly to her I would sing:
Oh, Haydee, my little lady, I love no one but you. Oh, Haydee, my Little lady, won't you love me, too? We'll get married in June,
and
Have a long honeymoon, then settle down for life. Oh, Haydee, my Y
Little lady, won't you be my wife?

I had a gal, oh, what a pal, she left me alone one day. I didn't Mind, because I find, they most always do you that way. So, I went About to try n' find out, if another gal I couldn't find. In less Than a day, I'd met Sadie Mae, now I hand her the same old line
Oh, Sadie, my little lady, I love no one but you. Oh, Sadie, my Little lady, won't you love me, too? We'll get married in June,
Have a long honeymoon, then settle down for life. Oh, Sadie, my little Lady, won't you be my wife?
