You Don't Need a Million Dollars

Joe Cocker

You don't need a million dollars
To wake up naked in the morning
And share a cup of coffee I smile at you smile back at me

You don't need to be a movie star
To see that night sky on your ceiling
Throw me a can of paint and we'll paint some stars

You don't need all of your problems
To melt away like chocolate candies
In your passenger seat on a hot August day

You have everything You really need Right here, right now You have everything That you really need Right here, right now With me

If you could see everyone's envy When you walk around in your cowboy boots That you found in a pile for a dollar at Wasteland

If you could see what I see
Like a crystal ball your blue eyes
Tell me of our future and it's everything we dreamed

You don't need all of your problems
To melt away like chocolate candies
In your passenger seat on a hot August day

You have everything You really need Right here, right now You have everything That you really need Right here, right now With me

You don't need a million dollars
To throw your head back laughing
To tell yourself it's gonna be fine
Really fine
Really no problems, amazing, every moment is the moment
You can choose, how you feel
You decide what is real and you can make
The truest love you can star in your own movie
You can write this song and sing it back to me
You can see the world is nothing if not love
You can see the world is nothing if not love
You can see the world is nothing if not love
Love, love, love

You have everything That you really need Right here, right now You have everything That your really need Right here, right now With me Right here, right now With me
