

Right To Respect

Joey Tempest

No one owns the waters
No one owns the earth
No one owns the mountains
The flowers and the dirt
No one owns a race
Colours can not hurt

But we own the right to respect
One and all

No one owns the words Spoken by someone who's fighting for his right
Just to be treated like someone
No one owns the hope
That burns in everyone

But we own the right to respect
One and all

And when we say we've had enough
we've really had enough
And when we say we don't want no more
We really don't want no more

No one owns a woman
No one owns a man
No one owns a country
The people and their land
No one owns a life
Yet I see blood upon your hands

But we own the right to respect
One and all
