

Goodbye Again

John Denver

1. It's five oclock this morning, and the sun is on the rise,
There's frosting on the window pane, and sorrow in your eyes.
The stars are fading quietly, the night is nearly gone,
And so you turn away from me and tears begin to come.

R: And it's goodbye again; I'm sorry to be leaving you,
Dmi G7 C C/h Ami
Goodbye again; cause if you didn't know,
Dmi7 G7 C C/h Ami Ami/g
it's goodbye again. And I wish you could tell me
Why do we always fight when I have to go?

2. It seems a shame to leave you now, the days are soft and warm.
I long to lay me down again, to hold you in my arms.
I long to kiss the tears away, give you back the smile,
But other voices beckon me, for a little while.

R: And it's goodbye again...

3. I have to go and see some friends of mine, some that I don't know and some who aren't familiar with my name.

It's something that's inside of me not hard to understand;
Dmi Dmi5#/7 Dmi7 G7
It's anyone who'll listen to me sing.

4. And if your hours are empty now who am I to blame?
C C/h Ami Ami/g F F/e G7
You think if I were always here our love would be the same?
As it is, the time we have is worth the time alone,
C C/h Ami Ami/g F F/e Dmi
And lying by your side the greatest peace I've ever known.

R: And it's goodbye again...
