Once I was walking alone with a friend
And as we spoke I felt the room begin to fade
And as I looked into another face I thought I knew
I realised some other smile was shining through

Another time Another place Another face seems to snap into your place Another time Another place Another time Don't try to talk right now Just hold me where we stand You know I need so much to give some time to you But often when I try I find that other world behind Another time Another place Once I was walking alone with a friend And as she spoke I saw the room begin to fade I turned around to find another lover walking by me Though she wore her hair a slightly different way

Another place
Another time
Another place
Once I was walking alone with a friend
