Same Old Man

Truth is I never was young Shot like a bullet from a rusty old gun I could never find the straight and true Honey, baby till I found you

I ain't saying I ever grown up girl Oh I'm the biggest baby in the world I know you can say a lot about that But you're so sweet you keep it under your hat

Honey I'm still the same old man That you married way back when A few less brain cells a lot less hair Honey tell me do you still care

I love you more than I ever did I love you just like a little kid Guess I'll always be your biggest fan Honey I'm still the same old man

We been down a rough road or two This is another one we'll get through Don't ask me how I know I'm just saying baby please don't go

Cause I can still sparkle up your eyes You can still cut me down to size Please take me as I am Honey I'm still the same old man

Honey I'm still the same old man That you married way back when A few less brain a lot less hair Honey tell me do you still care

I love you more than I ever did I love you just like a little kid I guess I'll always be your biggest fan Honey I'm still the same old man

You start out trying to change everything You wind up dancing with who you bring I loved you then and my love still stands Honey I'm still the same old man John Hiatt
