John Mayall

Crying

I'm crying Yes, I'm crying And I just don't know How it's all going to end I'm thinking back a long time When I hit my woman down It was a bad bad evil night When I realized what I'd done It was way too late, too late Too late for words and I'm crying

In torment sometimes We hurt each other so bad Nobody to turn to, no going back No such thing as God for us No more to touch her body No more to stroke her hair All I can do is break down in tears I'm crying and wondering Where am I now because of what I did I just don't know and I'm crying

It was a long time ago The pain is over now But I still think back sometimes And remember how I cried I was crying