Burnin up the highway, chasin shadows in the night He was on the road to freedom, passin everything in sight In the middle of the fast lane, on the wrong side of the road Slipped her into fifth, and goodbye was all she wrote

Ghost driver, ghost driver in the night

Never saw the warning, of the danger up ahead He was headin fast to nowhere, with the needle in the red Saw a blue light in the rear view, sayin stop, but he said no Then he saw a strange reflection, of a man he used to know

Ghost driver, ghost driver in the night

Heaven is a highway, with the Devil at the wheel Three hundred crazy horses, in black designer steel The neon sign said fifty, not a hundred and fifty five But it really didnt matter, he was learnin how to drive

Ghost driver, ghost driver in the night He was a ghost driver, ghost driver in the night