

When It Hits My Blood

John Vanderslice

I stole from my mother to hock her TV
she locked herself in the bathroom she locked herself away from me

I'm not her son

I've never felt this good before,
I've never been at peace inside

my mother's a pill fiend my girlfriend cut the rope, burned the sail step on it yourself, man drive down to fla. and bail

I'm not her son
I'm the son of a flower that grows on afghani bluff

I've never felt this good before,
I've never been at peace inside
