The Gettysburg Address

Johnny Cash

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on th is continent, a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that n ation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long en dure. We are met on a great battle-field of that war. We have c ome to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting pla ce for those who here gave their lives that that nation might l ive. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this

But, in a larger sense, we can not dedicate — we can not consec rate — we can not hallow — this ground. The brave men, living a nd dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what th ey did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated he ere to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us — that from these honor ed dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion — that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain — that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom — and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."
