

Hello Goodbye

Jonathan Clay

I'm afraid I cannot lie.
She didn't even try and I was blown away.
I can't help my attraction,
It's a chemical reaction and
It's here to stay.

Love is something that you need,
It's just like water to the trees
Only want it more and more.
And in a sick society it's like
A healing melody
But now she's out the door.

Hello goodbye is all she said,
But she won't seem to leave my head.
I'm so tired of the, so tired of the rainy days,
I'm so tired of the rainy days.

For a second it was there,
I sat down in my chair and
Tried to figure out.
Something clever I could say
About the weather, how's your day,
What's your book about?

I've got nothing left to lose.
Why do I always seem to choose to
Let it pass me by, all by.
I just go on with the day,
I've got so much I want to say.
And I'm just asking why.

Hello goodbye is all she said,
But she won't seem to leave my head.
I'm so tired of the,
So tired of the rainy days,
I'm so tired of the rainy days.

Maybe I'll see her on another day,
When the moon and stars
Finally have their way,
In the meantime
I'll be wondering why why, why.

Hello goodbye is all she said,
But she won't seem to leave my head.
I'm so tired of the,
So tired of the rainy days,
I'm so tired of the rainy days.

Oh the rainy days,
I'm so tired of the rainy days,
So tired of the rainy days,
No no no more rainy days
