

Lonely Financial Zone

Jonathan Richman

In the lonely financial zone
By the sea
I have walked under moon and stars.
Skyscrapers shone in their dark majesty.
In this otherwordly land of ours.
I've walked by the buildin's, I've walked by the malls,
I've walked by the skyscrapers, lonely and dark.
In the lonely financial zone
By the sea
I have walked under moon and stars.

In the lonely financial zone
By the sea
I have walked on cold winter nights.
I've stood in awe, so silently
Under the buzzing electric light.
Boats in the harbor, gulls on the pier,
Ships and trucks and sailors in the bars.
In the lonely financial zone
By the sea
I've often walked under moon and stars.
