

Start Over

Joy Denalane

Meet Angie, she got the heart of an angel
But is running low on self-esteem
Her family was her ma and her grandma
Soon to be a constant theme
Now Adam became a part of a pattern
That he'll probably never understand
Just added another home that got broken
To this No-Man's-Land
Think about it
Just cause your papa wasn't there
Don't give you the right to do the same
To pack your thins and disappear
Think about it
You're trying to act like you don't care
Telling youself you're not to blame
Just to regret it through the years

When it feels lika a cycle that you just can't break
It seems we don't learn from the mistakes we make
You look at the pieces that you can't mend
Start over, it ain't over, start all over again
Start over, it ain't over, you got to start all over again

Now Lukas always got an excuse
And can't live up to what he should achieve
He uses and takes advantage of his woman
Not even trying to succeed
And Susan wasn't born with a silver spoon in her mouth
Keeps moving through hard work and dedication
Never had to do without
Think about it
You can't save every man who needs you
Cause you been down and out before
You deserve so much more than that
Think about it
So busy trying to keep it true
That you're neglecting what is yours
Just take your time you'll find your match

When it feels lika a cycle that you just can't break
It seems we don't learn from the mistakes we make
You look at the pieces that you can't mend
Start over, it ain't over, start all over again
Start over, it ain't over, you got to start all over again