

Lights Inside This Dream

Julia Stone

There where lights inside this dream
Someone came here and turned them out on me
Now it's dark and I can't see
There's always someone with something they need

And I give myself away
And the takers always take
And they wear my skin
Like a cape and fly around
With nothing to say

I crawled inside this room
Looking for somewhere to heal this wounds
There's knocking at the door
There's always someone asking for more

And the takers take what they take
And they wear my skin
Like a cape and fly around
With nothing to say

I burn myself inside, I found nowhere else to hide
But the burning caught
Their eyes and they warm themselves
Around this dying fire

And I give myself away
And the takers always take
And I tried to walk away
But I lost my heart and I lost my faith
