

Not So Sentimental Now

Justin Currie

Pick up your sheet and my sheet too
I don't need a TV to stare at
All those pretty cloths to clear out
That you never put on anyhow
'Cause baby, I'm not so sentimental now

Out with the old, out with the new
If there's a trinket worth keeping
You better get it while I'm sleeping
Soon before the war breaks out
'Cause baby, I'm not so sentimental now

Don't think because I loved so hard
I can't be hurt when the hating starts
So take your wounded out
'Cause I'm not so sentimental now

Take everything, take what you see
The vitamins, the drawing pins
The covers you've been lying into me, yet take it back
'Cause baby, I'm not so sentimental now
