Crazy Lovers

Justin Hayward

I know that you know that we know As plain as the stars that are shining above And I know that you know I wait for the morning I wake up beside you my love And all of the things that you thought you should tell me Are all that I needed to know You told me our love was eternal Eternity's such a long time left to go Two crazy lovers we must find a way Hold on now baby I am on my way Book us a ticket on the midnight train You never know darling, they might never see us again 'Cos I know that you know that we know As plain as the stars that are shining above And I know that you know I wait for the morning I wake up beside you my love It seems like the world has been waiting to show us A secret it's kept for so long And oh how I know that it's love that has found us It's found us right where we belong Two crazy lovers we must find a way Hold on now baby I am on my way Book us a ticket on the midnight train You never know darling, they might never see us again They might never see us again They might never see us again, again, again Two crazy lovers we must find a way Hold on now baby I am on my way Book us a ticket on the midnight train You never know darling, they might never see us again Two crazy lovers we must find a way Hold on now baby I am on my way It's just the beginning there can be no end You never know darling, they might never see us again They might never see us again They might never see us again, again, again