

One Day Someday

Justin Hayward

Upside down and inside out Repeatedly defeated I've been messed about Kicked in the head and out of the bed Kicked into believing it was something that I said

But oh...tomorrow things will change
But tonight I think I'll drown in my sorrows, again...

They say I'm to blame, it's all my fault and take the things I say with just a pinch of salt I sold my sold my soul for just one night and then I spend a lifetime trying to make it right

But oh...tomorrow things will change
But tonight I think I'll grow up, get out of my brain

Cause one day, someday...our love will change the world and you'll come back to me...

We put our faith in God and man and one of them betrays us every chance he can We stumble on in wind and rain and even in the sunshine we get burned again

But oh...tomorrow things might change But tonight I think I'll drown in the music that's keeping me sane

There must be truth, there must be love

The world is full of lovers underneath the stars above and I'm still here, still rolling on Trying to get our love into every song

But oh...tonight I'll dream of you I'll dream I'm lying there in your arms dreaming of you

Cause one day, someday...our love will change the world
When you come back to me

One day, someday...love will reign, again...When you come back to me