

Supposed To Grow Old

Justin Nozuka

You broke my heart,
When you said goodbye
And only you can lift my spirit
You gave me wings and now you're gone

Well I'm crying inside,
A thousand tears every time I think of you
Lock the pictures away,
Hide the letters too,
Anything to get my mind off you

You just walked by me like nothing ever happened
When you said you would rescue me if I was ever falling Well now baby there's no way that you could have forgotten all of the memories
I thought we shared
We were supposed to grow old

Tell me how can I look up at the moon,
When I know that moon shines upon you
Through that window in your room
Oh how I wish I had you in my arms see darling I would never let you go