Stay tonight Let me hold you like I never did before Take my arms And let me hold you like I never did before And I should have tried just to talk about this Waiting, ending I should have tried just to let you know that I'm Still here So before you let me go... Take my hands Let me touch you like I never did before Take my heart and let me love you Like I never did before Like I never did before And I should have tried just to talk about it Waiting, ending I should have tried just to let you know That I'm still here But we waste it every time Now my heart is on the line And we see ourselves no more When we're closing every door It's so much harder than before So before you let me go Before you let me go..... Save the dance and let me spin you Till your world is turning round and round Round and round, round and round Save the chance and let me show you Just like you need a little more Just like you need a little more And I should have tried just to talk about it Waiting, ending I should have tried just to let you know That I'm still here But we waste it every time Now my heart is on the line Until we see oursleves no more When we're closing every door It's so much harder than before So much harder than before So before you let me go... Before you let me go... But we waste it every time Now my heart is on the line Until we see oursleves no more When we're closing every door It's so much harder than before So much harder than before But we wast it every time Now my heart is on the line And now we bruise with every step
