It's hard to rise.

When another weight is put on your broken back.

We give with our left hand with our right hand we take ten fold s back.

It's not our acts that kill it's more the fact that we never act.

We smile and sit content never pushing to make a change.

Their faces flash across the screen 10 seconds then they're gon e.

We press the button and look the other way.

The vicious cycle goes on and on.
