Snow

Kari Rueslåtten

all i want is to step outside into the mist with bare feet underneath the other side of the sun it will be a ferry waiting there for me to take me across it merely holds one chair i know i must loose you mhm mmmhmhm it's not that i have not got faith mhm mmmhm but i have got some stuff to do and people who need seeing to aha and i must build a world of snow close your eyes it will be less painful naturally and you should know that nothing ever stays the same especially all the things we build in snow like castles horses men and cities