Karin Park

I'll take you dancing on the other side of town It's something different from other things you've done

Under the bridge and over the road in a little tunnel, right by the harbour

They'll take us there in a little boat but promise not to tell a single soul

And she will open the door, the most beautiful of them all With a purple dress and a white big snake, she wears a ____

She licks your hair with her reptile tongue while she folds her arms around you And you know just how to meet her steps while the music cuts you through

Something different Something different
