March 4

Katatonia

Left with spring alone I withdraw from this I lived so differently it wasn't good enough

I was with you alone winter was gone

Things once blurred are twice sharpened when I think of what I could have blood has left me even before you can never return a second time

I lived so differently did it all for it but everything is now a film on rewind