

Ducks Don't Need Satellites

Kate Miller-Heidke

Ducks don't need satellites
They probably don't know they're up there
Ducks don't need satellites
They don't need satellites
They most likely think the sky ends blue

No need to think about the black
Give a quack, get a quack quack back
Don't need some mental far away
Telling them the weather for today
So they can say 'How bout it?'

Ducks don't need telephones
Ducks don't need telephones
Perfectly happy to just swim along

Ducks don't need telephones
They don't need answering machines
To know the choice is theirs
And that somebody cares

No need to think about the black
Give a quack get a quack quack back
Even people give them that
Did you ever hear a duck say quack
And say 'hello' back

Ducks don't need satellites
They probably don't know they're up there (and don't care)
Ducks don't need satellites
They don't need satellites
They most likely think the sky ends blue
Don't you wish you did too?
