

Kaleidoscope Machine

Katie Costello

When the tears begin to flow
Or I stub my pinky toe
I will somehow never be alone
If I'm bitten by a dog
Or kissed by a charming frog
This will somehow make it all okay

I've got something strange about me
But somehow I know

There's a song in my mind and a poem in my eyes
My Kaleidoscope Machine knows what's real
There's a beat in my heart that sets me apart
From the man in the hat who lives down the street

When my night-light starts to fail
Or the wind attacks my sails
This little thing makes it worth my while
When there's zombies at my door
I'll sing out like never before
Oh a happy melody is all I'll ever need

I've got something strange about me
But somehow I know

There's a song in my mind and a poem in my eyes
My Kaleidoscope Machine knows what's real
There's a beat in my heart that sets me apart
From the man in the hat who lives down the street

There's a song in my mind and a poem in my eyes
My Kaleidoscope Machine knows what's real
There's a beat in my heart that sets me apart
From the man in the hat who lives down the street
