

Jenny Lynn

Katie Herzig

All at once your city crumbles like Babylon
Even the gardens you've been hanging on
Disappear before your eyes
Take your time, let the words sink in
Before you say your mind
Heaven knows we all get lost sometimes
And you will find your way back

Wounded, you let your guard down and feel stupid
You wish you never would have trusted
Your heart in someone else's hands
But it's all okay
I think you may have made the best mistake
I think we're made to give ourselves away
'Cause there's no other way to live

Jenny Lynn, I wish I had your thin skin
I wish that I could let the love right in Maybe I'd rather feel the pain
'Cause freedom is
A naked heart that always dares to give
A willingness to let the tenderness
Be taken as it may