

Does Anybody Believe

Keel

There was a time When friends were more than people that you know There was a place Where we could do what we were born to do
There was a way that we could be what we were meant to be Love was alive and so were we

There's no use keeping score
In a game that never ends
Is it all worth dying for
If you never really lived

Does anybody believe
in anything anymore
Can you see inside your dreams
and wish for something more
Is there anything we want that's still worth fighting for Does anybody believe

Now there's a space Where truth and beauty one time seemed to be Has time erased
The visions I once saw so easily Was it destiny or fantasy

There's no use keeping score
In a game that never ends
Is it all worth dying for
If you never really lived

Does anybody believe
in anything anymore
Can you see inside your dreams
and wish for something more
Is there anything we want
that's still worth fighting for Does anybody believe