Wife and Kids

Kenny Chesney

Everybody thinks I've got it all Nobody really does, do they? I've got more than I deserve, more than I ever dreamed But there's always a price you pay It's been an amazing road I've been blessed, I know But at the end of the day I go home alone

I still hope someday I'll have a wife and kids Smiling faces running to the door when I walk in Saying "Daddy's home, you were gone too long. What'd you bring me? Swing me. Let me show you what I did" I still dream about that look on a woman's face That says I love you through the good, the bad, the sunshine or the rain Sometimes I wish I had someone to share my life with Maybe I'll have a wife and kids Maybe someday....

Maybe I could have a son Play football in the backyard Or take my daughter fishin', and when she turns 15 teach her ho w to drive a car When I grow old and they've all left home I want to lay beside my wife and talk about the old times, reme mber all the good times.

I still hope someday I'll have a wife and kids Smiling faces running to the door when I walk in Saying "Daddy's home, you were gone too long. What'd you bring me? Swing me. Let me show you what I did" I still dream about that look on a woman's face That says I love you through the good, the bad, the sunshine or the rain Sometimes I wish I had someone to share my life with Maybe I'll have a wife and kids Maybe someday....

Sometimes I wish I had someone to share my life with Maybe I'll have a wife and kids Someday... I'll have a wife and kids Maybe someday...
