The train is comin' at 6: 05 And I'll be gettin' on it to take a long ride Back to an apartment so empty inside With loneliness the only thing that's waiting I bought my ticket today I just paid for one way The price was too high for returning I have spent all my love Getting none in return I bought a ticket to nowhere today And I still hear her voice As it rings in my brain Telling me she's in love Oh, yes, well, really That she's been hurt before That's what first love is for But now she's found the kind of love That she's been needing She's standing there so shy Feeling nothing inside Not seeing the pain my eyes are trying to hide For her, it was fun, but it's all said and done No love left in the silence of goodbye And I still hear her voice As it rings in my brain Telling me she's in love Oh, yes, well, really That she's been hurt before That's what first love is for But now she's found the kind of love That she's been needing I bought a ticket to nowhere today I bought a ticket to nowhere today
