

Love Comes Down

Kerrie Roberts

Weak and weary sinner
Longing for relief
You've been watching as disaster
Steals another piece

Of all that you've held so close
What you love the most but you can never keep
And hope seems like a promise just out of reach
You'd die to feel alive again, you long to be set free

Then love comes down when your heart is lost
When you've seen your whole world shattered
And your dreams just fall apart

So lift up your voice, let Him hear your cry
When you've got nothing left to hold onto
That's when love comes down
Love comes down

If you could only know who loves you
Who feels your every pain
If you could only hear Him speaking
With the voice as sweet as rain

You know that He counts your tears
He holds a mirror
No one will go to waste
And the sorrow that weighs you down will float away

Then love comes down when your heart is lost
When you've seen your whole world shattered
And your dreams just fall apart

So lift up your voice, let Him hear your cry
When you've got nothing left to hold onto
Well, that's when love is stronger than any heartbreak
And you know every broken piece will be made whole

Love comes down
When you need it most
When you see your world get shattered
Without love, it all falls apart

So lift up your voice, let Him hear your cry
When you've got nothing left to hold onto
That's when love comes down
When love comes down
When love comes down

That's when love comes down
When you've got nothing left to hold onto
That's when love comes down