

Novocaine

Kids in Glass Houses

Wanted for never, I never learn to write a true song
Wanted for never, find the words at the end
Wanted for never, I never try something different
Wanted for never, I never say never again

You are Novocaine, you numb my body through
As I lay here again under a violet moon

Half way to heaven, I keep on looking for direction
At twenty-seven, they sell me in a room with a band
And if I ever reach my destination
We'll be together, with girls kicking legs at the men

You are Novocaine, you numb my body through
As I lay here again under a violet moon
You are Novocaine, you numb my body through
As I lay here again under a violet moon

Wanted for never, I never learn to write a true song
Wanted for never, I never say never again

You are Novocaine, you numb my body through
As I lay here again under a violet moon
You are Novocaine, you numb my body through
As I lay here again under a violet moon

(You are Novocaine, you numb my body through)
Wanted for never, I never learn to write a true song
(As I lay here again under a violet moon)
Wanted for never, I never learn to write a true song
(You are Novocaine, you numb my body through)
Wanted for never, I never learn to write a true song
(As I lay here again under a violet moon)
Wanted for never, I never learn to write a true song
Wanted for never, I never learn to write a true song