

Scars That Save

Kids In The Way

Over and over your blood covers me.
How many times will it take me to see?
I am so dangerous.
I am so irresponsible.

Here I am, broken again,
But then you show me,
You're wearing the scars that save.
How can you see me, as something so lovely.
'Cause it's killing me that I am to blame.

Over and over It falls back to me.
My knees hit the floor and it's easy to see.
I am so arrogant.
I feel so unforgivable.

Here I am, broken again,
But then you show me,
You're wearing the scars that save.
How can you see me, as something so lovely.
'Cause it's killing me that I am to blame.

This is my same old song.
The one where I do it all wrong.
And I will try with all that I am
To get it right in the end.

This is my same old song.
The one where I do it all wrong.
And I will fight with all that I am
To get it right.
