

Sound of a Woman

Kiesza

One more time I stand by
While you choose to cross the line
I don't know why I try
Should have left it all behind
Can't go on, can't rewind
Something holds me deep inside
What's the point, love aside
I have no more tears to cry

Baby, I don't need you
Especially not your lies
You never let my voice through and wonder while I cry

Maybe that's the sound of a woman
Maybe that's the sound that her heart makes
When she's crying out to the one man
Chaining her to love that she can't escape
You would understand if you listen
You wouldn't find her eyes focused on the door
Maybe that's the sound of a woman
Begging you to try just a little more

One more time, I'll ask why
You let me waste all those nights
Had I known, I'd have not let you step into my life
We both know that I tried not to leave it all behind
Even though I explain you still read between the lines

Baby, I don't need you
Especially not your lies
You never let my voice through and wonder while I cry

Maybe that's the sound of a woman
Maybe that's the sound that her heart makes
When she's crying out to the one man
Chaining her to love that she can't escape
You would understand if you listen
You wouldn't find her eyes focused on the door
Maybe that's the sound of a woman
Begging you to try just a little more

If you've ever think of us
Baby, you should think of every thing that you gave up
While I run away from love
If I ever think of us
I will just remember what I went through when I gave up on you

Maybe that's the sound of a woman
Maybe that's the sound that her heart makes
When she's crying out to the one man
Chaining her to love that she can't escape
You would understand if you listen
You wouldn't find her eyes focused on the door
Maybe that's the sound of a woman
Begging you to try just a little more
Just a little more