

Before You Fall Asleep

Killing The Dream

From the bottom looking up, I never thought I'd know the meaning of these words, or how it felt to hear them back. Every morning came with shards of glass. Another broken dream didn't seem so bad. I was on my last wish, until you came and took my hand.

And showed that there was a reason to breathe. Now the tears are gone, and I can see. And I'm praying your forever starts with me. The truth is, I've only come this far because of you, and

I need you here to see this through. Let's start forever today. The years will pass but this won't change. I hope you're not too far gone to hear. But let these words ring out forever. I'll scream until my last breath. Scratch these words in blood, until my heart runs dry. This heart that beats for you. Its all for you.