This is a dawning A calling to face down consequence No honor in hiding behind a wall, that keeps you sane Shed the skin of past mistakes No remorse and no escape The burden of your consciousness Don't turn back. Your time has come Draw your breath Define your ascension Put your fears to death Define your ascension As the tension builds within you Let conviction conquer All those who stand before you This is fair warning. No turning back There is no indecision Don't turn away Your time has come It all ends today Your time has come This is fair warning Your time will come