

Don't Cry

Kina Grannis

Don't cry darling
You know it hurts to see your tears
Don't cry
I know you think you'll never love again
Darling all things take time

2 years 3 months 5 days an hour ago they fell in deep
And ever since the tie has grown so strong emotions steep
Said, "I could spend forever in your arms, so can I please?"
The answer unexpected wrung his heart, fell to his knees

This is the moment for so long she has been waiting
Benevolent no less becoming what it's meant to be
But as he passes no long glances she advances meets his face again
Not a smile not a tear no grin its over gone its sinking in

Don't stop your fall, take it in, take it all
Watch your step, broken shards of your heart on the ground
Just keep the pieces safe for now, you feel that they could cut somehow
But soon I know you'll find a way, and piece it back again some day
