

These Magnet Hearts

Kina Grannis

The other night when we laid together in the dark
I placed my head upon your chest to hear your heart
I tapped it out, Morse code rhythms on the bed
Did you know that I understood each word that it said?

Thought of the times I didn't have you by my side
Reluctantly, we'd both agreed to say goodbye
Such painful things, so much hurt that we've been through
Now I see that perhaps that's what we needed to do

Just to be back lying in your arms
Feeling home again and sure inside your warmth
I would relive all of the waiting
For these magnet hearts, they can't be kept apart

It frightens me to think I could have lost it all
By letting us always be the ones to take the fall
Whenever I began to doubt myself
Next thing I know, I'm crying out another farewell

Ooh, don't ever leave me, love
Ooh, we've made it hard enough
Ooh, I know we belong
These magnet hearts so strong
