Border Line

You know I tried so hard My feelings just can't discard The way in which I fell into Your heart is never what I once knew Lately my skull has kept Dividing lines deep set and paved Two paths too wonder throught to depart And sever desires to pursue

And the soul chokes To cause the tide To enforce divide This whole devotion has morphed in time I'll escort her mind to solve my crimes Reach slow motion to con the mind

See here I trace my steps To where my senses left And rain had turn my sense to mush This slowly seeping straight through the crust Now let these stains of gunk slip down To where my head once sunk and drowned Just to wait for a while to see My body has merged to the deep cruel sea

But my soul floats Adrift thoughtless minds, distorded lines The soul is broken down, borderlines To cause the tide, to enforce divide This whole devotion has morphed in time I'll escort her mind to solve my crimes Reach slow motion to con the mind So scorn devine and mourn the pride The cold has spoken, draw the line King Krule