Someday

Kirk Franklin

I hear you calling me saying my child hold on and I feel you touchin me remindin me to be strong though I must admit it's hard for me to see through this hurt and pain but in your arm I know I'll be free someday oooh yeah yeah

Sometimes it seems to me that the power of love is gone everyone fights yet they want peace I wonder where we went wrong but in my dreams there is a place where the sun lasts always I know it's hard for you to see but soon there comes a day when

Love will never end broken heart will mend again yesterday as been replaced now we have another chance to save someone whose lost give them help, no matter the cost we'll stand together come what may we'll all be free someday

I know it's not easy to laugh with tears on your face but, my friend just believe in me I know there is a better place where everyone will be the same and we won't have to cry no more so when this world turns you away just know my friend there will be a day when

Love will never end broken heart will mend again yesterday as been replaced now we have another chance to save someone whose lost give them help, no matter the cost we'll stand together come what may we'll all be free someday

Don't forget without the rain flowers never grow my friend the clouds won't last always I promise you there will be a day when

Love will never end broken heart will mend again yesterday as been replaced now we have another chance to save someone whose lost give them help, no matter the cost we'll stand together come what may