Just dropped in, I was driving past You know I missed you since I saw you last It gets lonely since you haven't been around Little things don't make me cry But still I think you could have told me why You had to move out to the other side of town Ah you caught me out Ah you caught me out But when I saw you walking out the door You know I just couldn't take any more I started crying Every night I lie awake Afraid what shape my dreams might take I call your name out but I never hear a sound You could say there's no love lost But now I sit down and I count the cost I wasn't ready to surrender what I found Ah you caught me out Ah you caught me out But when I saw you walking out the door You know I just couldn't take any more I started crying It doesn't seem there's any way To say the things I wanna say It's too late for me to explain I love you Ah you caught me out Ah you caught me out But when I saw you walking out the door You know I just couldn't take any more I started crying Ah you caught me out I started crying
