

If I don't start sleeping on the floor again
I'll be testing out my patience
I wasn't always selfish
And I'm starting to think that there's a reason
That I couldn't keep our trust; I think started to see through you
'Cause gold can't rust

I woke up and I thought I'd felt the end again
It's a pain that has worn into my skin
There's only so much that I can take back once you're gone
So let the bad luck clutch my arms
I swore I wouldn't feel this way anymore

If I don't start sleeping on the floor again
I'll be testing out my patience
I wasn't always selfish
And I'm starting to think that there's a reason
That I couldn't keep our trust; I think started to see through
you
'Cause gold can't rust

I've gotta get used to growing old without this stable ground to walk on
I never really moved on
And if you wanted honesty I'll throw it back like I'm 16
So if you wanted honesty I'll throw it back like I'm still...

If I don't start sleeping on the floor again
I'll be testing out my patience
I wasn't always selfish
And I'm starting to think that there's a reason
That I couldn't keep our trust; I think started to see through
you
'Cause gold can't...