

Bobby Lee

Kris Delmhorst

Late morning, midnight, sunny Tuesday gloom
Silence under shutters, stillness in the room

Bobby Lee, Bobby Lee, this cave's too dark for me
I gotta go out where the wind can find my face
And I just hope that you'll see eventually
That I was only trying to roll the stone away, roll the stone a way

The years and the seasons, the tide and the breeze
They come and bring their changes
So you call them all your enemies

Bobby Lee, Bobby Lee, I don't think I can breathe
And the walls get closer every single day
Yeah, and it's true I'm gonna leave, I just hope you can believe
How hard I really tried to roll that stone away, roll that stone away

Sorrow comes a knocking but you won't let her inside
So she goes away with a joy, her little sister
But she's looking back in her tracks, a tear in her eye

And Bobby Lee, Bobby Lee, I believe it's killing me
And I got no other words that I can say
But I pray every night that someday you might Find a way to roll that stone away

And Bobby Lee, Bobby Lee, oh, you meant the world to me
And I'll miss you more than I could ever say
But I tried for so long and no one is that strong
I think it's you who's gotta roll that stone away
Roll that stone, roll that stone, oh, roll that stone
