

World Gives You Wings

Kris Delmhorst

Would it make a difference if I spoke more quietly?
Can you hear me if I barely breathe?
Would it make it easier if I was not here at all?
Would it help you make this feel small?

You got the widest shoulders now
The cleanest hands and the driest eyes in town
I can make noise enough for two
Guess, I'll cry your share for you
Just for the sake of making sound

And now I am a stranger from a long way away
If I spoke your language there would still be nothing to say
'Cause we all know tomorrow I'll be high over this place
And I can tell you one thing, the world gives you wings
You open those things and fly

It's just another April snow
We've seen enough that we both know that this can never last
What sticks tonight will not hold up to daylight
When you wake up it's already melting fast

And now I am a stranger from a long way away
If I spoke your language there would still be nothing to say
'Cause we all know tomorrow I'll be high over this place
And I can tell you one thing, world gives you wings
You open those things and fly, fly, fly

I can tell you one thing, world gives you wings
You open those things
Your voice can still ring, you gotta stand up and sing
And if the world gives you wings
You open those things and you fly, fly

Would it make a difference if I
Would it make a difference if I
Would it make a difference if I spoke more quietly?
