You need to move along, along, along The string of injustice stung those that bling cause now they blung Materialism stings and now they stung You need to move along Life is like ding, dong, ying, yang, bing, bang, ping, pong, or ping, pong Any lyrical battle we won Yes, this a master flow, this how life go on First you got it then your gone So don't get stung Cause after the bling it's blung

Move along, along, we can't get stung
We the one, my melanin stuns right up in the sun
I go and I come, don't mind me son
I'm just a teacher, them cats should't try me son
I'm that lively one
I roll with them grimey ones
At the Temple (of Hip Hop) you can find me son
What I bring and sing reflects what I brung
I be rolling, aling off the tongue
You can check them other ones
Maybe them younger ones
But I be that I witness just like Connie Chung
Some burn the paper
Some burn the bong
I'm burning rappers, I think you need to move along!

No material thing stays with you long

Move along you little singers
Never linger round a rhyme bringer
These rap blingers
I break you off a middle finger
Bell ringa, in your mind a dong dinga
Yo, that's what's wrong with these singas
When they sing all they bring is bling
THEY DUMMIES
But after the bling aling, aling is blung
Post bling is blung
A new ting son

I'm rockin these bells like ding dong As you can see I got no rings on Cause it got nothing to with what springs song So ding dong Open the door to freedom $\,$ Any of my books you should read dum and be strong Or else you need to move along, along, along Your lyrics are cow dung There use to be a TV talent show with a gong And when the gong gonged you were gone Yes I am the lyrical Don Beats for art um But I am unattched to all of thum The message of the song is bling blung Don't get caught up in watcha bought up Be Strong
