A Part Of Me

Kurt Nilsen

Coming home with the sentence saying "I've missed you" And to see your happy face again There is not a single moment that I ever think the thought Of not returning again

Summer went and got pale once more A brand new city I have to explore I have been searching for good answers and wisdom I keep on coming back with less, 'cause I've lost them

She does not know that a part of me has left home And it's never ever coming back There is nothing I can do with that She does not know that a part of me has left home And it's never ever coming back Never ever coming back

There's no sleep for the living nowadays Hanging in there with a steady course I can feel it from the back of my spine I am totally yours

Autumn comes I've seen it before Another town it's not that fun anymore I've been searching for those perfect answers I need you more right now than ever

She does not know That a part of me has left home And it's never ever coming back There is nothing I can do with that She does not know That a part of me has left home And it's never ever coming back Never ever coming back

Coming home with the sentence saying "I've missed you" And to see your happy face again

She does not know That a part of me has left home And it's never ever coming back There is nothing I can do with that She does not know That a part of me has left home And it's never ever coming back Never ever coming back
