A Love Song

Ladyhawke

It all began innocent as love can be In every word you gave it all to me Cause this is what a love song sounds like Another life, two beating hearts are mine The party's over, but you're still over the line Cause this is what a love song sounds like

This could be my life, but it's only words To make me feel right when the meaning's blurred You've opened my eyes to the oldest tale of time This is what a love song sounds like This could be my life, but it's only words To make me feel right when the meaning's blurred You've opened my eyes to the oldest tale of time This is what a love song, love song sounds like

I'm falling down, too much to drink again You pull me up and tell me how it could end This is what a love song sounds like I gave it up, I don't wanna hurt anymore, it wasn't me; Why can't you just open the door? This is what a love song sounds like

This could be my life, but it's only words To make me feel right when the meaning's blurred You've opened my eyes to the oldest tale of time This is what a love song sounds like This could be my life, but it's only words To make me feel right when the meaning's blurred You've opened my eyes to the oldest tale of time This is what a love song, love song sounds like

Life is always meant to replay No heart break no more today

This could be my life, but it's only words To make me feel right when the meaning's blurred You've opened my eyes to the oldest tale of time This is what a love song sounds like This could be my life, but it's only words To make me feel right when the meaning's blurred You've opened my eyes to the oldest tale of time This is what a love song, love song sounds like

This is what a love song sounds like
