Koran

I believe in a better world I believe in a better place I believe in brotherhood, equality and freedom I believe in happiness for all

When the light is leading us Through the darkness of the night There are questions I will follow

When the light is leading us

There are all these questions on my mind

Words are nice Words are memories of pain The future is invisible Words are something that remain

Words are substance for tomorrow They are weapons of our mind Words can take us far away They will leave us all behind

You believe in a better world You believe in a better place You believe in brotherhood, equality and freedom You believe in happiness for all

When the sun goes down again And the moon is shining bright There are all these questions on our mind
