

Her Eyes Will Tell You Everything

Lansdowne

We walked side by side but never hand in hand,
You were always two steps ahead of me when it counted.
Waiting for me to arrive, anxious to take a stand,
You hung on every word, hoping they'd feel the way they sounded
.

Whoa, whoa.

Whoa, whoa.

If you'd only look her eyes will tell you everything,
Cuz' winter only waits so long for spring...

And all I had to do was give myself to you,
Just follow through with what I already knew.
It's times like this I wish that time just didn't exist.

But maybe someday I'll come around
And tell you all the things that I never said,
With the courage that I never found...

Whoa, whoa.

Whoa, whoa.

If you'd only look her eyes will tell you everything,
Cuz' winter only waits so long for spring...

Doorstep...

She leans closer.

Her eyes say, "Come on just kiss me,
What are you waiting for?"

And he knows it's now or never.
He hesitates, she walks away,
The day breaks and I say:

Whoa, whoa.

Whoa, whoa.

Whoa, whoa.

Whoa, whoa.

If you'd only look her eyes will tell you everything,
Cuz' winter only waits so long for spring...

And I say...