

Is there anybody here but me

Laura Branigan

Sitting in 'la castlette'
The same place we first met
Trying to talk it out before 'the fall'
You look the other way
I struggle for the words to say
Feels like I'm talking to the wall
I can hear them play our song
But somehow it sounds all wrong
In a lost romance, dancing a lonely dance
With a heart that doesn't beat as much
Fingers that have lost their touch
Looking into eyes that just don't see
We dance a little loud at times
I laugh when I feel like crying
Is there anybody here but me
Two silhouettes in the dark
So close, so far apart
Going through the motions of the past
The night is coming to an end
It's getting harder to pretend
But still we try to keep this love alive
With a heart that doesn't beat as much
Fingers that have lost their touch
Looking into eyes that just don't see
We dance a little loud at times
I laugh when I feel like crying
Is there anybody here but me
Never dreamed what we started could end like this
Lovers saying goodbye with a stranger's kiss
With a heart that doesn't beat as much
Fingers that have lost their touch
Looking into eyes that just don't see
We dance a little loud at times
I laugh when I feel like crying
Is there anybody here but me
Is there anybody here but me
Is there anybody here but me